New York Stock Market

New York, April 4.—Some features of interest were discernible through the intense dullness of the day's dealings in stocks, although the net price changes were inconsequential. One was the extreme thinness of the market in the periods when there were any stirrings of animation. There had been some selling by bear traders in the first hour on the chance that decision adverse to the American Tobacco Company would be handed down today. The hour of the convening of the court in Washington was chosen for the covering of these short contracts. But the point of interest was that in the filling of these buying orders there was a fluctuation from 185 5-8 to 186 1-2 on the purchase of a 500-share block of Union Pacific. In several other stocks in which the market usually is broad there were variations of 1-2 to 3-4 between sales. The question was whether the interest in the narket thus disclosed might by due in part to the going into force to-day of the new reform rules of the Stock Exchange directed against manipulative practices. The rule most relied on for that purpose forbids the ignoring of orders for 100-share lot units in executing orders for larger amounts. A favorite device of the manipulators was to put in an order for a large amount of the stock "all or none; which was effective often in moving the price without any actual transaction being necessary. It was intered that the new rule, in discouraging such orders, might be responsible for the open spaces hare of orders that were encountered when prices moved to-day with any decision. The relage of the market into stagnation after it Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 12614 points on a much better Liverpool market than expected. Shorts were thrown into some confusion by the strength across the water, and they covered extensively on the first call. Bulls were also aggressive bidders. Continued rains in Texas and the promise of more to come caused long liquidation.
